But I Didn't Say Goodbye

But I Didn't Say Goodbye is an innovative approach and tool for parents, teachers, and professionals to help children cope with the trauma of losing a loved one to suicide. By reading the story of Alex, a ten-year-old boy whose father died by suicide, adults can learn the perception of a child suicide survivor and children can relate to Alex and therefore open up about their own grieving process.

But You Didn't Say Goodbye!

But I Didn't Say Goodbye introduces you to a bereaved family immediately after a suicide and ends five years later. The dialogue in each chapter will show you how you can help develop honest, open communication between children and the people in their lives. Alex's questions are the same as many other children following a suicide.

But I Didn't Say Goodbye | Centering Resources

I didn't want to say goodbye, but I had to when I realized I had to move on because you moved on a while ago. I needed to get you out of my head, because remembering when we were happy didn't do me any good—it only broke my heart even more. I didn't want to say goodbye, but I had to because you weren't good to me.

Funeral Poem- We Didn't Get to Say Goodbye

I didn't get to say goodbye. It was, in other words, the beginning of another ordinary day in the hurry, rush-rush world we so comfortably live in. It was so ordinary. But it was not to remain ordinary and now the entire world will long remember that day September 11, 2001 as a day of endings, a day of beginnings, a day of terror, a day of death.
